BERNARDO PENAHERRERA

Bernardo Penaherrera is a Program Associate who supports NCBA CLUSA's USDA-funded Strengthening Co-op Capacity for Historically Underserved Farmers, and USAID-funded Farmer-to-Farmer Program. Before joining NCBA CLUSA, he worked as a project manager in an agro-industrial company, where he led projects on infrastructure, product development and marketing. He also spearheaded an initiative to quantify waste across its supply chain.

Bernardo graduated from IE University in Madrid, Spain earning a bachelor's degree in International Affairs. While on Erasmus at the University of Leeds, he performed an analysis of Venezuela's food and land policy and their role in the food, economic and political crises. Bernardo successfully completed the Data Analytics Bootcamp at George Washington University.
