

TEIA EVANS

Teia Evans is the Project Director for NCBA CLUSA's USDA-funded Strengthening Co-op Capacity for Historically Underserved Farmers. Ms. Evans has been working with nonprofit and cooperative development organizations for most of her career. Prior to joining NCBA CLUSA, Ms. Evans provided technical assistance and training to help develop cooperative economies across the country and served on the CooperationWorks! Board of Directors.

Her background includes working to help farmers secure resources to maintain and improve farm productivity, as well as creating distribution systems for farmer networks to expand their reach. Ms. Evans is a proud graduate of Morgan State University. She earned her MBA from North Carolina Central University and Juris Doctorate from NC Central University's School of Law.
